

Janice is a native rural Californian living in Massachusetts since 1971. She was a Peace Corps Volunteer working in Rural Community Development and Family Planning in the Dominican Republic 1966-1968.

Janice returned to complete her undergraduate degree in California and then moved East for graduate studies at UMASS in Amherst, MA.

For several years she worked in migrant education, sales and marketing and sales management in New England.

She was Peace Corps Country Director-Panama 1997-2002 and a consultant to Peace Corps in Timor Leste in 2003.

Currently she works as a FEMA Disaster Assistance Employee working in Disaster Field Training Operations and Individual Assistance in Disaster Recovery Centers.

Janice also works as a gender consultant in Latin America and is an avid birdwatcher and basketball fan.

Janice and a saw-whet owl.